Sample sentence of adverbial phrase

An adverb phrase is simply a group of two or more words that work as an adverb in a sentence. Just as an adverb can change a verb, adjective or other adverb, an adverb phrase more than one word can further describe a verb, adverb, or adjective. Woman floating in the ocean as examples of adverb phrases Adverb phrases typically answer questions like, where, why or when something has been done, as you will see in the adverb phrase examples below. Consider the following phrases: I parked the car. I parked the car here. I parked the car right here. I parked the car right here under the bridge. The first sentence does not contain an adverb or adverb sentence at all. The second sentence contains the adverb "here" to describe where the car was parked. The third sentence contains the adverb phrase "here," which emphasizes where the car was parked and employs a sentence instead of a single adverb. The final sentence of the group contains a longer and more informative adverbial phrase. Note that "here under the bridge" is a prepositional phrase that uses the "under" preposition and the "bridge" object. In this case, the prepositional phrase works as an adverb in the sentence. Since it changes the verb to describe the position, it is both a prepositional phrase and an adverbial phrase. A simple adverb phrase usually contains an adverb and at least another word before or after it, although a prepositional phrase or an infinitive phrase can also act as an adverb.
